

Better investor presentations

Be more persuasive when talking to LPs

In private equity LPs are expecting more. You need to communicate with them more often, you need to be more transparent and you need to be clearer about how you are performing. To help existing and prospective LPs better appreciate your value (and to help your investee companies), make sure your presentations and communications are of the highest standard.

Who Is This For?

When looking for investment, you want to make just the right impression in your pitch meetings, so that the LP looks forward to learning more and seeing you again.

Once you have investment, your annual investor days need to reassure and inform LPs, so that you continue to get their support, through hard times as well as the good.

Your investee companies need to be on top form when they are raising finance or being sold. You want potential investors to be excited about the business's prospects and to be clear that you have the right management team.

What Services For Private Equity?

Private Equity firms use us to:

- Prepare teams before fund-raising
- Help get ready for annual investor days
- Prepare management teams of investee companies pre-disposal or financing
- Rehearse before conferences, speeches and media interviews

Focused on delivering high quality financial communications, our team helps you craft the story, the presentation as well and polishing your delivery style.

A key success factor in any presentation is confidence. Confidence in your presenting team and in your documents boosts confidence in your audience. Our training makes sure you achieve this.

What Makes Us Different

You want to see a high return on your investment from any service like this. We deliver value with:

- 1) Expert trainers with solid understanding of PE
- 2) Programmes tailored for you
- 3) Practical no-nonsense approach
- 4) Immediate and long lasting benefits.

That's why the leading companies call upon our services.
